THE CHALLENGE OF CHANGE

report of the president

The three years between November 1961 and November 1964 have been significant as a period of "challenge and change" in patient care, teaching and research.

The development program moved from successful completion of fund raising, to design and planning, and now to actual new facilities, some of which are already in use by the hospital.

There were important extensions in the field of co-operative planning with other hospitals and educational institutions to improve service to patients.

There were important changes in staff, including promotions and appointments of brilliant young men, physicians and others.

An Imaginative Board

In meeting successfully this period of challenge and change, Beth Israel has been fortunate in receiving the utmost in loyalty, ability and dedication from many people:

Our officers and trustees, serving during this period of complex rapid developments, have had the imagination and vitality to meet the problems with clear enunciation of responsible, forward looking policies. They have had that creative vision which recognizes that teaching hospital trusteeship demands long-range planning, and Beth Israel Hospital will reap the benefits of this kind of leadership in future generations.

The community which supports this hospital, the Women's Auxiliary, other volunteer groups, our sister hospitals, the Harvard Medical School, the Tufts Medical School and other educational institutions, the Combined Jewish Philanthropies — all have co-operated wholeheartedly and have given us great pride and happiness in the knowledge that Beth Israel is a vital part of a large network of humanitarian services.

Construction of New Facilities

What actually has been accomplished these past three years?

Soon after I became president, our development fund reached its goal, and we began the task of implementing the program which had been in the planning stage for several years. The construction program is progressing in a satisfactory manner consistent with the complexity of the operation:

The Ziskind Research Floor of the Yamins Building has been completed. It has added considerable space to our research facility and has given us the opportunity of attracting some outstanding research people to our staff.

The renovation of the Emergency Unit is practically completed. It is now a completely new and modern facility capable of providing expanded and more efficient service to our community. The Clinical Research Center, operating under a Federal grant, has been completed and is engaged in the vital studies of arteriosclerosis and the process of aging in man.

Some of our obstetrical and gynecological facilities were updated, and this service continues to operate well. Additional laboratories, some new and some renovated, have added considerably to our capacity in the clinical, teaching and research fields.

Activity in Rabb and Gryzmish Buildings

The Florence L. and Mortimer C. Gryzmish Building, renamed from the old North Building, has already undergone considerable renovation, including three new elevators, and will experience additional building activity. Our power plant was shut down and new steam lines have been installed connecting all of the Beth Israel buildings with the Harvard power plant, a co-operative of which Beth Israel is a member.

Last, but by no means least, the new Rabb Building, which represents the largest phase of the development program, is rising rapidly. The rear half of this building is nearing completion, with some areas already occupied. Construction of the front half is proceeding at an accelerated rate.

Regime Marked by Co-operative Planning

One of the areas which has shown marked activity is co-operative planning with other hospitals and educational institutions. Joint projects of this type enable us to do together what we could not do alone. Our discussions with neighboring institutions have already resulted in the establishment of two important programs:

Together with Northeastern University, Massachusetts General Hospital and the Children's Hospital Medical Center, we have organized a co-operative nursing education plan. This plan went into effect in September of this year. We will soon be feeling its beneficial effects.

The second project has broad implications for the advancement of medical knowledge and the treatment of patients. We have joined with the New England Deaconess Hospital, the Children's Hospital Medical Center and Harvard Medical School in the establishment of the Shields Warren Radiation Research Laboratory. This facility, which is now under construction on Brookline Avenue, will broaden the horizons of research in Radiobiology. We are continuing discussions about a projected facility for patients, which will also be jointly operated.

Both of these co-operative plans could not have taken place without the advice and counsel of Dr. George P. Berry and Mr. Henry C. Meadow, Dean and Associate Dean respectively, of the Harvard Medical School.

Rapid Change in Hospital Care

Along with these other changes, we have been moving ahead in the never-ending task of keeping Beth Israel abreast of the latest developments and incorporating them into our program of patient care, teaching and research.

During the past three years, we have made several major appointments to the medical and administrative staffs. Dr. Howard H. Hiatt became our Physician-in-Chief and the first occupant of the Herrman L. Blumgart Chair of Medicine at Harvard. Dr. Morris Simon was appointed Radiologist-in-Chief and Assistant Clinical Professor of Radiology at Harvard. On the administrative side, Dr. James J. Feeney became Director of Clinical Services, and Rodger L. Daniels was appointed Director of Fiscal Services.

Many other appointments have been made. Some of them involve younger doctors, who came to us with brilliant records and the promise of even greater achievement in the stimulating environment of Beth Israel.

Our research budget, consisting largely of grants from government agencies and foundations, has approached a $2,000,000 annual figure. Quite a wide range of research projects is being carried on within our walls.

The teaching program, which involves about 1200 students a year, has also continued its growth during these three years. Changes in the Harvard teaching curriculum, expansion of other teaching activities, institutes and seminars, have all contributed to the atmosphere of learning and inquiry: one of the hallmarks of Beth Israel's greatness.

All of these changes and major endeavors have been taking place at the same time in which we have rendered more care to more patients than in any preceding three years in our history.

Excellent Cooperation

I am appreciative of the wholehearted cooperation I have received from the Women's Auxiliary, the officers, trustees and staff during my term of office. I am particularly appreciative of Dr. Sidney S. Lee, our General Director; and have come, without reservation, to respect his judgement, admire his tact and forthrightness, to recognize his wisdom and to appreciate his complete devotion to the best interests of Beth Israel, which he has always represented with dignity.

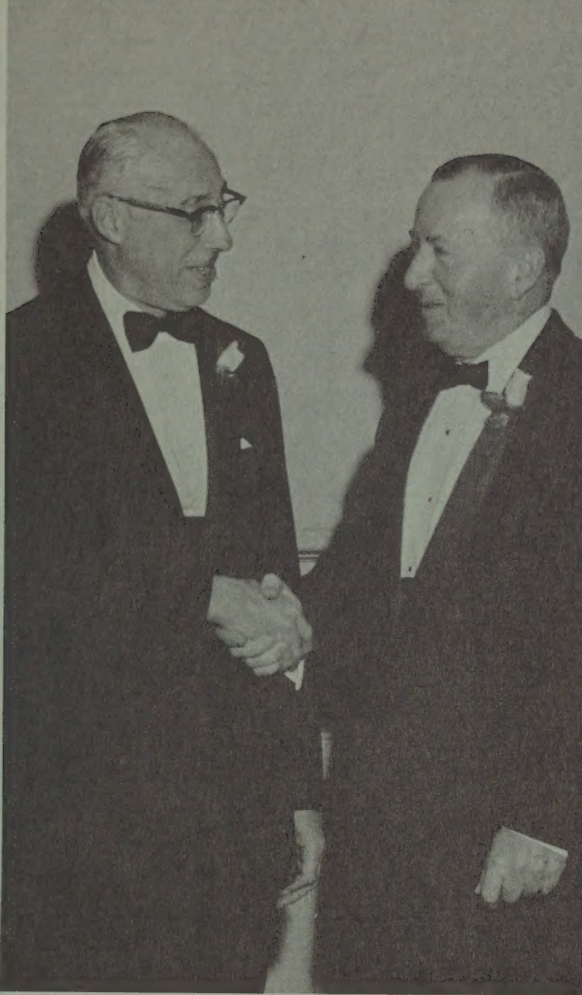

As you have heard by this report, Beth Israel is not a static institution. It is vibrant and almost breathtaking in its scope and complexity.

I wish to thank the Board of Trustees for having given me the opportunity to serve our community these past three years. The work has certainly been rewarding and stimulating.

Thank you.

PART 1	PATIENT CARE

PART 3	RESEARCH

Sidney S. Lee, M.D., Dr.P.H., General Director

PART 1 PEOPLE WHO TAKE CARE OF PATIENTS

A great hospital like Beth Israel stands at the center of a vast network of community health services. It is composed of many elements: brick and mortar, machines and instruments. Above all, however, it is a place for people.

There are people who come for help as patients; and there are people who take care of these patients.

There are people who come to Beth Israel to learn; and there are people who teach them.

There are people who search for new medical knowledge.

The combined efforts of all of these people are dedicated to the provision of the best possible care for patients. This is the hub around which our teaching and research activities revolve. It is the reason for the hospital's existence.

Some idea of the magnitude of these activities can be gained when we realize that over 35,000 people are treated here as inpatients or outpatients every year, that over 107,000 patient days of care were given in 1964, that more than 2500 babies are born annually at Beth Israel, and that over 325,000 clinical laboratory tests were performed here last year.

This report, divided into three parts, will attempt to present the highlights of the hospital's activities during 1964 in patient care, teaching and research.

In 1964 we made significant progress in working toward the provision of better medical care despite innumerable difficulties engendered by the demands of our building program. These difficulties were borne cheerfully because all of us recognized that the completion of new facilities will increase our efficiency and therefore our capability to render more and better teaching, research and patient care services to the community.

Dr. Bibring Reaches Emeritus Status

In 1965 a great psychiatrist and teacher, Dr. Grete L. Bibring, will reach Emeritus status as Psychiatrist-in-Chief and Clinical Professor of Psychiatry. At the 1964 Annual Dinner her numerous friends and colleagues saluted her unique accomplishments at Beth Israel during the nineteen years in which she has graced our halls.

Dr. Bibring has been interested in the integration of medicine and psychiatry and the teaching program she developed here has been effective in helping our physicians to blend their medical knowledge with the understanding of the patient's personality and psychological needs.

Of all the tributes rendered to Dr. Bibring that of Dr. Helen Tartakoff, Associate Visiting Psychiatrist, most nearly described the uniqueness of her skill and personality.

"Here is a woman to whom nothing human has been foreign; therefore, she has been eminently well equipped to understand others," Dr. Tartakoff said.

Add Important New Staff

The quality of the people who take care of patients, who teach and carry on scientific investigation is of prime importance to a hospital committed to the standard of excellence. In 1964 we were proud to welcome several physicians who have great potential and who have already brought credit to Beth Israel Hospital.

Dr. Irving H. Goldberg has been appointed Associate Professor of Medicine and Visiting Physician. Formerly at the University of Chicago, his outstanding studies of the biosynthesis of thyroid hormone, and of the mechanism of action of antibiotics, have earned him an international reputation.

Dr. David Feingold, Associate in Medicine, and Instructor in Medicine, came to us with an excellent record of achievement in the field of bacteriology. Dr. Gerald Plotkin, also an Associate in Medicine and Instructor in Medicine, has had wide experience and a fine reputation in the field of gastroenterology. Two other younger men, Dr. Sheldon Kaufman and Dr. Carl Hirsch, also joined the 1964 staff and will strengthen our clinical and research programs.

Another appointment which enhanced our ability to serve the cause of medical progress was that of Dr. Thomas Ashford, Associate in Pathology and in Surgery. The Electron Microscope Laboratory, under Dr. Ashford's direction, will utilize this unique instrument to provide deeper insight into life processes. Through its high powers of resolution and magnification the electron microscope makes possible the examination of cellular components too small to be seen with the ordinary light microscope.

Dr. Werner Chasin became head of the Department of Otolaryngology, Assistant Visiting Surgeon in Otolaryngology and Instructor in Otolaryngology to strengthen our services in this area.

In 1964 too, one of our outstanding staff members, Dr. Stanford Wessler, who served as Visiting Physician and Assistant Professor of Medicine left our hospital to accept the post of Head of the Department of Medicine at the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis and Professor of Medicine at Washington University School of Medicine.

Some Statistical Highlights of Service to Patients

One of the indices of service to patients is the number of tests performed in the Pathology and Laboratory Service. In 1964, despite repeated dislocations caused by the building program, our laboratories showed a marked increase in activity. Under the direction of Dr. David G. Freiman, Pathologist-in-Chief and Director of Laboratories, and Professor of Pathology, 326,843 tests were done, compared with 278,974 in the previous year. The Chemistry Laboratory registered the largest increase, with 28 per cent, with Bacteriology next (plus 22 per cent).

The Surgical Service, with Dr. Jacob Fine as Surgeon-in-Chief and Professor of Surgery, performed 6,143 operations in 1964, an increase of 292 over 1963.

In the Pediatric Service, a significant new program was begun under the direction of Dr. Robert B. Berg, Pediatrician-in-Chief and Assistant Professor of Pediatrics. The program utilizes the hospital as a community center for providing comprehensive health care for infants and children of medically indigent families.

With patient care as its primary concern the plan seeks to overcome the "fragmented care" which is presently available for such children. Over 100 families, including almost 300 infants and children, are involved in the first phase of the program. It provides the essentials of continuity of physician responsibility, comprehensive care, qualified pediatricians in charge, and delivered at the lowest possible cost.

Home Care Observes Tenth Anniversary

The hospital took special pride in observing the Tenth Anniversary of our Home Care Program. This community service, which enables many indigent people with chronic illness to receive comprehensive care in their own homes, was begun initially as a pilot project financed by the Women's Auxiliary.

Since its inception in 1954 the Home Care Program has served almost 700 patients and has registered more than 120,000 days of patient care. Its primary objectives are to coordinate the care of the patient at home, prevent or postpone disability, prevent or reduce institutionalization, and maintain the integrity of the family unit during an illness of one of its members. In fulfilling these goals the program further enhances its status as a community-wide activity by working closely with a number of health agencies affiliated with the Combined Jewish Philanthropies and with other public and private organizations.

In 1964 we provided a total of 12,720 days of care to 47 patients on this program. The Home Care team consisted of physicians, visiting nurses, social workers, therapists and other specialists, as needed.

A total of 2400 home visits were made to the Home Care patients. Physicians made 566 visits, visiting nurses 1,262, social workers 500, and occupational therapists 74. There were also a total of 5,432 homemaker hours registered for the program.

Ambulatory Services Increase

Two services which illustrate Beth Israel's function as a health center for the community are the Outpatient Department and the Emergency Unit. To these facilities come people from every segment of the community on an ever-increasing scale. Despite the difficulties which stemmed from construction we were able to render significant service in these areas in 1964.

The Outpatient Department, with 61,857 visits experienced a slight increase over the previous year. Of the 39 clinics which were in operation, 14 saw more patients than the previous year. The Psychiatric Clinic reported the largest rise in visits, with 11,789, an increase of 1,192 over the previous year. The Integration Clinic, closely allied with this field, completed its second year of activity with 597 visits, 317 more than the previous year. The Medical Clinic, with 9057 visits, increased by 865. Other clinics which showed increases in number of visits were Dental, Endocrine, Gynecology, Physical Medicine, Pre-Natal, Skin, and Well-Baby.

Throughout 1964 the personnel connected with the Emergency Unit struggled under great odds to handle a high volume of cases. This facility, which has had steadily increasing demand for service, continued this trend in 1964 with 17,114 cases, a rise of 727 over 1963.

The full impact of this service can be seen when we realize that fully one-third of the people admitted as inpatients come to us via the Emergency Unit. At year's end, when the renovation of the Emergency Unit was largely completed, Beth Israel Hospital was the possessor of the most modern emergency service facility in the Greater Boston area.

Nursing, Social Service Indispensable to Good Care

In Nursing Service, headed by Miss Dora E. Zolotin, two developments highlighted a year in which excellent care was given to patients despite the fact that Beth Israel Hospital suffered from the national shortage of nurses.

The Unit Manager Program, which was begun in 1963, was extended to additional floors. This progress enables our nurses to give more time to direct patient care. The Unit Manager has assumed the task of coordinating all non-nursing and support services, thus relieving nurses of many administrative functions. The program has initiated central services of supply and will explore new ways in which to heighten the effectiveness of nursing service to patients.

The hospital's affiliation with the Northeastern University College of Nursing also became effective in 1964 and we began the clinical instruction of the first 30 students who were assigned to Beth Israel. Subsequently we expanded the affiliation and Northeastern will assign an additional 50 girls to its 1965 freshman class, making a total of 80 students who will be identified with Beth Israel Hospital. These moves will enable us to phase out the existence of our own School of Nursing by 1967 while assuring us of an increasing supply of nursing students.

Social Service, under the direction of Mrs. Beatrice Phillips, plays a vital role in providing total medical care to patients. The department gave service to 8,707 patients in all units during 1964. The Private Patient Counseling Service, established in October, 1958, had 220 referrals. In addition, one social worker was detached to the Associated Jewish Community Centers to serve on a new project entitled "Medical Social Service to Golden Age Clubs."

Community and Hospital — A Two-Way Street

As a health center for the community, Beth Israel Hospital provides the best possible patient care. In return it draws heavily on the community for all types of direct and indirect participation in patient care. This includes the responsibility of the Board of Trustees to set policies, gifts and contributions from a broad segment of people, the work of the Women's Auxiliary in providing all types of aid, the Volunteer Service which gives direct and indirect assistance in patient care, and other organizations which give help in many ways.

In this two-way street the work of the Officers and Board of Trustees is outstanding. Mr. Isidor Slotnik, who completed three years as President in 1964, and Mr. Samuel L. Slosberg, who was elected to succeed him in November, 1964, have given innumerable hours of their time and executive talent in helping to guide and shape the destinies of our hospital. The other Officers and their fellow Trustees have displayed the highest caliber of community leadership in meeting consistently the most difficult problems with courage and imagination.

The Women's Auxiliary, whose 1964 report appears elsewhere in this book, has also played a leading role in stimulating the hospital to continue the high-level performance which has always been the hallmark of Beth Israel's excellence.

Volunteers play a significant part in supporting the work of the Beth Israel team. Last year 516 volunteers gave a total of 47,358 hours of service, under the direction of Mrs. Phyllis Sugarman, Director of the Volunteer Service.

An outstanding service performed by the Volunteers was the staffing of our newly created visitor pass system. This activity, which helps to enforce the hospital's visitor regulations, was given almost full coverage by the group.

The Candy Strippers, teen-aged boys and girls, were very active during the summer, rendering important assistance on patient floors. Other activities which continued on a high level included the Nurses Aides, Men's Volunteer Corps, Evening Volunteers, Gray Ladies, Gift Shop, Thrift Shop, Service Volunteers, Surgical Dressings Group, Women's Auxiliary Office, and the Golden Age Group of Temple Emanuel.

The Young Executives Group, composed of men in business and professional fields who are considered to have leadership potential for the hospital, continued its program of Seminars and committee work in 1964. Members had the opportunity of learning about programs and problems of the hospital at first hand from hospital leaders, touring important facilities, and working directly with various Board Committees.

PART 2 PEOPLE WHO TEACH AND PEOPLE WHO LEARN

The education of those who provide care to patients is one of the prime functions of the university teaching hospital. It is wholly interdependent with the actual care of patients and research activities; each assists and requires the assistance of the others.

Beth Israel Hospital belongs to this small group of university teaching hospitals. It was the first Jewish-sponsored hospital to carry this distinction. When we reflect that there are less than 200 major teaching hospitals among the almost 7,000 hospitals in the country we can take great pride in the high standard of excellence which this designation connotes.

The hospital's teaching program embraces all or part of the professional education of some 1200 students each year. We try to teach how to care for patients and how to care about patients. For it is true that we cannot teach doctors to be good doctors, nurses to be good nurses, social workers to be good social workers, unless we can show them and have them participate in good patient care.

Aims of Teaching Program

At our Annual Dinner in 1964 Dr. Herrman L. Blumgart, Physician-in-Chief Emeritus and Professor of Medicine Emeritus, stated, in his uniquely incisive fashion, the aims of our teaching program. He said that our education program was dedicated to:

- the education of the next generation of physicians,
- the on-going development of our present staff,
- the advancement of learning in order to enhance treatment of patients, and
- through these efforts to supply the finest medical care to the sick within the hospital and to the community as a whole.

Beth Israel's education program in 1964 sought to carry forward all of these objectives through its affiliation with the Harvard Medical School, Tufts Medical School, Northeastern University College of Nursing, our own Beth Israel School of Nursing, Simmons College School of Social Work, and the Boston University School of Nursing. In addition, we were active in providing postgraduate seminars and symposia, dietetic internships, and courses for X-ray and laboratory technicians, dental assistants and others.

Increased Teaching of Medical Students

The highlights of our teaching program in 1964 show a wide range of activities and significant progress in many areas.

With changes in the curriculum of the Harvard Medical School, the hospital was involved in an expanded teaching program on the wards and private services.

The House Staff, numbering more than 80 residents and interns in all major services, also experienced increased learning opportunities. Teaching facilities for these physicians were enhanced by the activation of several new seminar rooms as a result of the building program.

Symposia Attract Many Physicians

During the year the Psychiatric Service and the Medical Service sponsored symposia which drew the attention of hundreds of doctors throughout the nation.

The two-day psychiatric symposium, entitled, "Can Psychiatry Be Taught? A Reappraisal of the Goals and Techniques of the Teaching of Psychiatry," featured four panels on the teaching of psychiatry to medical students, psychiatric residents, physicians in the community and medical house officers.

Another aspect of the program of continuing education for doctors was the series of 16 conferences sponsored by the Medical Service on "Modern Therapeutics, A Critical Evaluation." The sessions featured lectures and discussions by outstanding national medical authorities. The series dealt with such subjects as modern drugs, vaccines, the route to drug discovery, diet and drugs in the treatment of atherosclerosis, non-specific factors in disease and its treatment, the pharmacological basis of diuretic therapy, a critical evaluation of tranquilizers and related drugs, and antimicrobial agents.

At an international symposium on pulmonary embolic disease, Beth Israel was represented prominently by seven staff members and Dr. Felix G. Fleischner, Radiologist-in-Chief Emeritus. The symposium revealed recently developed therapeutic methods by which pulmonary embolism can be treated effectively if diagnosed early in its clinical course.

Hospital-Sponsored Lectures

The Richard Bruce Miller Memorial Lecture was given by Dr. Kristbjorn Tryggvason, Pediatrician-in-Chief at the Landspítali, Reykjavik, Iceland. Dr. Tryggvason presented a broad picture of ongoing public health programs in his own country.

At the Medical Alumni Reunion Day in 1964, three former members of the hospital's house staff were the lecturers. The Beth Israel Hospital Staff Memorial Lecture was given by Dr. Arnold Seligman, Surgeon-in-Chief of Sinai Hospital, Baltimore, and Associate Professor of Surgery at the John Hopkins University. He spoke on "Development of New Cytochemical Methods for the Electron Microscope."

The Paul Selby Lecture, on "Dimethyl Sulfoxide," was given by Dr. Stanley W. Jacob, Assistant Professor of Surgery at the University of Oregon Medical School. "Insulin and Protein Biosynthesis" was the subject of Dr. Ira G. Wool, Associate Professor of Physiology at the University of Chicago, who gave the Eugene Bernstein Lecture.

The first Obstetrical Staff Memorial Lecture was also given by Dr. Alfred I. Sherman, Associate Professor in Obstetrics-Gynecology and Instructor in Radiotherapy at Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, who spoke on "Treatment of Cancer of the Cervix."

Provide Professional and Technical Education

Educational opportunities are offered to social work students through our cooperative program with the Simmons College School of Social Work. Last year five graduate students were assigned to our Social Service Department. Closely supervised by experienced social workers they learned to put into practice the knowledge they gained through their academic work. In another program, the Department offers college juniors the chance to explore professional social work as a possible career. During the six-week summer program the student observes the function of social service in the hospital setting and learns something about the aims and philosophy of the profession.

There were ten Research Fellows at Beth Israel Hospital in 1964, working in the fields of Medicine, Surgery and Periodontology.

The expanded affiliation with the Northeastern University College of Nursing has been mentioned earlier. In addition the Beth Israel Hospital School of Nursing had a student body of 160. Forty-three students received their diplomas. In line with the phase-out, there will be no freshman class admitted in 1965.

More than 50 students from the Boston University School of Nursing also received some of their education at Beth Israel Hospital. This took the form of clinical training in Obstetrical-Gynecological Nursing.

Another important educational program offered at B. I. is the Dietetic Internship Program. Last year thirteen young women received the benefit of this one-year course. Open to graduates of an accredited college or university the course combines a wide variety of study and experience in the organization and management of hospital food service and the application of the principles of scientific nutrition in health and disease.

Some 22 students were also trained as Dental Assistants, Medical Technologists, and X-ray Technicians.

The Dental Assistants training program encompasses one year in the Dental Clinic as well as formal classes and laboratory work.

The Medical Technologist program provides the fourth year of training in this field to students from Simmons College. The two-year course in X-ray Technology is conducted in cooperation with the Center for Continuing Education, Northeastern University.

PEOPLE WHO SEARCH FOR KNOWLEDGE

Indispensable to the provision of good patient care and sound teaching is a broadly based research program. Beyond the test tube and the laboratory are the many people who infuse a research program with vitality and meaning — physicians, research fellows, technicians, and scientists with special skills. The work of these people who search for knowledge has two functions: it increases our basic medical understanding and knowledge, while helping to improve care of the patient.

For Beth Israel Hospital, a research program is a key link between its role as a center for community health and its function as a university teaching hospital.

In 1964 various granting agencies provided $2,204,000 for more than 50 research projects and educational training. This represented almost twice as much money as had been granted in 1960. Research activities were carried on by six major services during 1964. Approximately 100 people were engaged in these programs.

Varied Studies in Medical Research

Under the direction of Dr. Howard H. Hiatt, Physician-in-Chief and Herrman Ludwig Blumgart Professor of Medicine, 23 projects were in progress in 1964.

- Dr. Hiatt's own group has developed research in three areas related to normal growth and to cancer. The first area is studying the growth control mechanisms in normal cells and abnormalities of such mechanisms in cancer cells. The group has obtained evidence that mammalian control mechanisms differ considerably from the better known mechanisms in lower organisms with which they have hitherto been compared.

- The second area relates to the adrenal hormones, which are among the most important factors regulating growth and metabolism. The group is studying the effects of this hormone on nucleic acids, essential constituents for cell growth.

- In the third area the group is studying several compounds which are known to be useful in the chemotherapy of certain forms of cancer. The results in the individual patient are unpredictable, and most of the drugs are toxic. The group is exploring systems whereby a given patient's response to a drug can be predicted from laboratory results, before the patient is exposed to that drug.

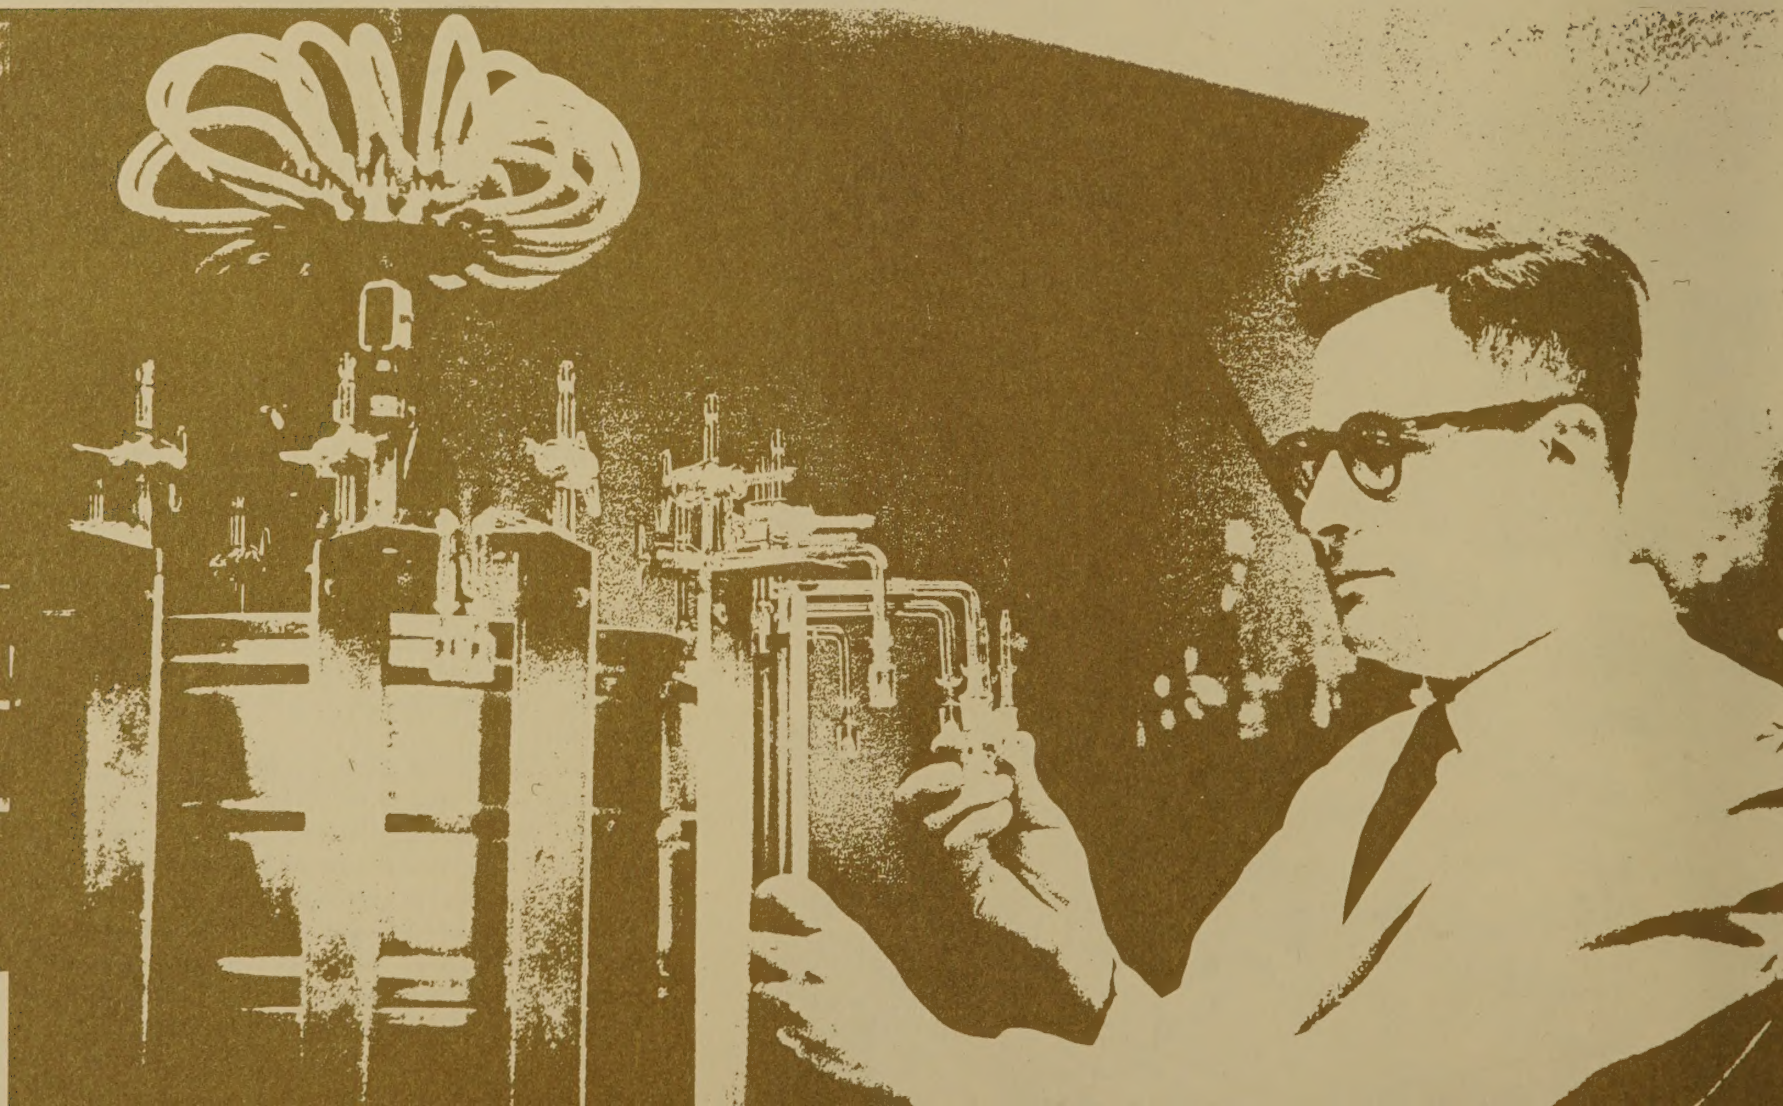

- Dr. Benjamin Alexander, on a Sabbatical Year at the Weizmann Institute in Israel, continued to coordinate his own group at Beth Israel and colleagues in Israel on projects in Hematology. Drs. Liberto Pechet, John M. Bennett, and Araceli

Engel extended studies on the effects of soluble proteases and insoluble derivatives on fibrinogen clotting, and on prothrombin conversion to thrombin.

With Dr. Alexander, the group prepared insoluble thrombin for the first time and it was shown to activate the zymogens, trypsinogen, plasminogen, and chymotrypsinogen.

- Dr. Irving Goldberg's research involves continuing studies of the mechanisms of assembly of the thyroid hormone in the normal gland, and in disease states such as hyperthyroidism and thyroid cancer. Another major effort by his associates is providing new information concerning the mode of action of a widely used antibiotic, actinomycin D.

- Studies by Drs. George Kurland and A. Stone Freedberg have continued on the effect of altered metabolic states on myocardial function. New techniques for instantaneous measurement of blood flow and pressures in the heart and great vessels in unanesthetized subjects permit detailed analysis of the pumping ability of the heart under a variety of stresses.

In other studies they have analyzed the pattern of obstructions in the coronary arteries in patients with heart attacks who have gone into shock. The data suggest that nervous reflexes may play a role in this often disastrous complication.

- Drs. Paul M. Zoll and Arthur J. Linenthal have continued their studies on Stokes-Adams disease and allied arrhythmias. Artificial electric pacemakers have now been implanted in over 100 patients at the Beth Israel Hospital; this series constitutes the largest experience with this technique in the world.

- Work by Dr. Irwin Freedberg has proceeded along several distinct lines, all related to investigations of macro-molecular metabolism in epidermis. His slice system has been used to study the effects upon epidermal protein and nucleic acid synthesis of several classes of locally applied medications.

- Studying relationships between salt, water, and blood pressure, Dr. Bertram Winer has made many new observations relating renin, a hormone secreted by the kidney, to the control of these factors. A technique which permits accurate measurement of this substance has opened new areas of investigation of great theoretical and practical importance. For example, renin secretion may account for salt and water retention in pregnancy and in the second half of the menstrual cycle.

Surgical Service Has Extensive Program

Under the leadership of Dr. Jacob Fine, Surgeon-in-Chief and Professor of Surgery, the Surgical Research department is carrying on an extensive program of investigations.

- Dr. Fine is engaged in several studies, including the pathophysiology of peripheral vascular collapse, and circulatory insufficiency with specific reference to the role of endotoxin in traumatic shock. With Dr. John A. Williams, Dr. Fine is studying serial determinations of blood volume.

- Dr. Chester B. Rosoff is engaged with Dr. Fine in research involving intestinal flora in defense against massive injury. Effective suppression of the coliform flora prevents death from otherwise lethal injury. This was first demonstrated in traumatic shock, and since for whole body radiation and more recently in immersion burns. There is evidence that activity of intestinal bacteria blocks the recovery of defense mechanisms and the synthesis of proteins required for repair of damaged vital tissues.

- The pathophysiology of shock in man is under current study by Drs. Edward D. Frank and Dr. Edward Friedman. A specially constituted "shock team" studies the disturbed physiology of patients in circulatory collapse, bringing to the bedside devices for the measurement of cardiac output, central venous pressure, circulation time, blood gases, and blood volume. The data add to our understanding of shock, and provide valuable guidance in the management of these patients.

- Vascular components of the homograft response is being studied by Drs. Howard A. Frank and Peter B. Lambert. Using microangiography for serial study of the fine vessels of graft and host bed, and H3 labelled thymidine radio-autography to observe cell replication, studies are in hand correlating blood vessel and lymph vessel responses with the metabolic activity of autograft and homograft during graft acceptance and rejection.

- Dr. A. M. Rutenburg is conducting research with urinary enzymes in malignant disease, significance of hydrolytic enzymes in patients with cancer, and the evaluation of new agents for the treatment of cancer.

Other Projects Cover Wide Field

- In Psychiatry, Dr. Grete L. Bibring is continuing her research studies, including the psycho-analytic investigation of two pregnant women and the psychological course of pregnancy.

- Dr. David G. Freiman, in Pathology, is working on a study involving enzyme activation in normal and neoplastic tissue. The characteristics of enzymes which are present in both the normal or the cancer cell are being investigated with the aim of revealing alterations in the direction of malignancy before they are otherwise recognizable.

Other studies in which Dr. Freiman and his group are concerned include studies of the pathogenesis of gastric cancer in man, gastric polyps, colonic polyps, gastrointestinal mucins, pathogenesis of diverticulosis and diverticulitis, hemorrhagic necrosis of the intestine in man, pathogenesis of pulmonary infarction, frequency of pulmonary embolism in man, and studies on the relation between virulence and lactate metabolism in staphylococcus.

WONDERFUL WOMEN

report of the president of the women's auxiliary

Anna S. Ullian

It is very gratifying to report that in 1964 the Auxiliary continued to maintain its high standards of achievement. Thousands of women rededicated themselves to the task of reaching our goals.

Our activities have made everyone aware of the important role played by the Women's Auxiliary in the life of the hospital. Through our three basic principles: fund raising, volunteer service, and public relations, we made it possible to contribute constantly to the hospital for capital improvements, outpatient care, social service, nurses' scholarships, Home Care, expensive transfusions, drugs, blood, life-saving equipment, and many other services which helped to promote and advance the welfare of the hospital.

Through our publication HIGHLIGHTS we kept our 8000 members informed of the activities of the Auxiliary and the important news and events of the hospital. Through our Public Relations department all programs were channelled for promotion and publicity. The Young Leadership Group of the Auxiliary was organized in October, 1964. This group of promising women leaders attended a series of seminars designed to provide in-depth information of the programs — progress — and problems at Beth Israel Hospital.

The lectures were presented by Chiefs of Staff and Services, with panel discussions. This proved to be a most successful attempt to offer those who attended a comprehensive and intimate knowledge of the advances in patient care-teaching-research-programs in progress at the hospital. The information gained in this activity will enable the Leadership Group and members of our Board to interpret to the community the role of the hospital in their daily lives.

The proceeds from the 1964 Annual Luncheon with approximately 2400 women attending enabled us to contribute to the furnishing and equipment of the new Outpatient Department and Emergency Unit. Our Thrift Shop and Gift Shop continue to flourish and contribute substantially. Life Membership and Annual Membership held their campaigns and Telethon. Our Remembrance Fund is a daily project and benefits the Social Service Department. The Branches in the outlying communities are an integral part of our activities and have been working effectively since 1952.

We are especially proud of the success of the Home Care Program which celebrated its 10th anniversary last November. In 1954 the Auxiliary provided $20,000 for the pilot program, and to date we have contributed a total of $148,000. Through our aid for nurses' scholarships we have helped increase the nursing staff, and we will continue this for the new student nursing program at Northeastern University.
